

When Sarah runs out of the building in tears after being fired, the rumor mill goes into overdrive about who the handsome CEOs, Erik Harper and Sebastian Hale, were going to pick to replace her as their personal assistant. As a newer employee for the company, I hadn't expected it to be me. I was wrong. The craziest part about my new position happens when my bosses tell me that they're both desperate to produce an heir soon, but neither of them has the time to date. The reason why they chose me for the position soon becomes clear. And after Sebastian and Erik explain that they actually want to share me instead of making me choose between them, it seems like the offer is too good to be true. But what if it isn't?
