2016 Gabriel Malinov is a Russian spy working for Interpol's new secret Military Intelligence Division, Interdefense created after the Paris Terror Attacks in 2015 to combat the worldwide terrorist threat from I. S. and organized crime. His brief is to protect Antonia King, a beautiful feisty English journalist from I. S. at all costs. The journalist went undercover inside a Refugee camp in Marzello Italy nicknamed, The Hole to write about the plight of the people forced to live in extreme conditions and the mysterious disappearances of women and girls from the camp at night. But she finds more than she bargained for when she becomes the only witness able to identify the I.S. terrorist posing as a Refugee radicalizing the young men in the camp and organizing an army of suicide bombers to attack European cities. Malinov cannot help being captivated by his charges bravery and beauty. He helps her to expose the I.S. plot to bring chaos and death to Europe and fight to rescue the two Muslim girls she protected in the Refugee camp taken to be child brides. Malinov is determined to protect Antonia from the danger that swirls around her even if it costs his own life. But he cannot protect himself from falling in love with the emotionally scarred journalist and a passionate affair between them begins. Publishers Note: This book is the first of two in The Liberator story.
