

Pregnant and alone, Lydia is doing the best she can. With a little nudge from her new friend, Carrie, she goes to the Interstellar Love Agency to see if maybe there's an alien out there who would be the perfect match for her. She may not be lucky in love when it comes to human men, but maybe all she's needed is a little intergalactic love. Gryf has wanted a mate since meeting his brother's new wife and son. The agency has yet to pair him with anyone, but it doesn't stop him from making frequent visits to see if he can push things along. When he sees Lydia, standing uncertainly in the doorway, he knows that she's the one. As Lydia fights to find her footing in a new life, Gryf does his best to support her in whatever way she'll allow. Things heat up quickly between them and before long, Lydia finds herself falling in love with the big, blue alien. But should she really be dating her boss?
