

Behind His Walls

Sometimes there are monsters hiding in the people we love. Monsters we don't see until it's too late. As a psychologist to abuse victims, I see the damage those monsters can cause every day and the hell the women go through to regain their lives. My experiences in life are a double-edged sword. Without them, I wouldn't understand the women who seek my professional help. Having them has ruined me for any woman. I refuse to let history repeat itself. I know the statistics of what should become of me, but I'm fighting the monster inside of me every day. I can't turn my back on any woman who needs my help, and Dr. Lindsey Perkins is no exception. With an escaped convict she helped put away after her, she needs my protection more than anyone. But when she gets too close, who's going to save her from me? I've built these walls for a reason. A reason Lindsey is determined to uncover. It's better for her to only know me as Dr. Hatcher and leave Joseph behind the walls. Ages 18+ due to adult situations and violence.
