

Something Real (Friends Book 3)

Olivia Grants husband walked away from their family without a backward glance. Starting again, she turns to an old love for comfort, writing. When she sells her house and moves into an apartment block to save money, she meets her new neighbour, Logan. Writing her new romance book in secret, she draws inspiration from her growing feelings for him, including an awkward conversation that culminates in his confusion and hurt. Olivias insecurities run deep, and as they get past their issues to embark on a romantic relationship, she struggles at times with trust. Can Logan show her that what they have is something real? Some characters from the first two books in the series feature, but this is a standalone book.
