Simone Dyani Staton yearns for family after losing her father at age five and her mother at eighteen. All she has is her best friend Amber and Ambers family that have taken her in as one of their own. Though she still feels that theres something missing. So in the search for a sense of belonging, Simone journeys to the wild landscape of Alaska to meet her mothers estranged native tribe, hoping that they will accept her half-breed heritage. Never finding much interest in men, preferring to bury her nose in a book or her studies, Simones romantic experiences can be summed up to one brief chaste kiss in high school. So imagine her surprise when she is confronted with an intense attraction to her two gorgeous Alaskan tour guides. And just as surprising, the attraction seems mutual. But how can she choose between the two best friends? Unbeknownst to Simone, the men have a dark and forbidden secret...Jackson Cole and Xander Drake share their women. With a lack of female companions in the Alaskan wild, they found that they preferred sharing rather than fighting over the women they wanted. And they wanted the twenty-nine year old virgin unlike any other woman theyve ever met. Her exotic looks and curvy body hidden behind horn-rimmed glasses, chastity and a shy demeanor have them dying to posses her. The question is, will that same innocence that brought them to their knees, send her running in the other direction when they reveal their darkest desires? Or if they are lucky enough to get a taste of her, can they willingly let her go when her journey is over? Find out in this exploration of erotic self-discovery and finding where one truly belongs.
