

Bree Sommers meets the challenge of widowhood with determination. Stepping bravely into the role of both mom and dad to her two children, she finds life busy enough to suppress her heartache. In fact, she is handling everything quite well until Dane Alexander enters their lives. Dispute and misunderstanding mark several encounters, but the sparks that fly soon ignite fires of new love. But is it a love Bree dares pursue? On the one hand she truly admires Dane. He adopted a child abandoned at birth, and is now involved in a custody battle with the mother. Dane's fierce love for his son touches a like chord in Bree's heart. Dane, however, makes no profession of faith, and Bree's relationship with Christ is paramount. All three children fall rapidly in love with each other's parents, complicating matters as Bree must decide between her faith in God or her love for a man.
